

Dear Parishioners:

Nowadays, some of you may have questions for me. “What happened to your prophecy that the coronavirus pandemic would come to an end soon? Didn’t you say you were delivering the Lord’s message? How come are we still suffering from the pandemic? Why is it even getting worse as days go by?” You must be disappointed. I am disappointed, too. I have asked the Lord the same question. “What happened to your message?”

The past three weeks have been very difficult for me. I have been bitter toward God. I have protested against Him. I have put myself against Him who has been silent all through. I have undergone spiritually ‘Dark Night.’ There is no clear answer. After the painful times, I drew the following conclusions. It is either I heard God’s voice wrong, or misunderstood it, or misinterpreted it.

Therefore, I give my sincere apologies to you all. It was completely my fault. I wholeheartedly feel sorry for using God’s name in vain by presumptuously claiming that I was conveying His message. To those who have been tormented by false hope that my assertion has caused and to those who have spent times of doubts and disappointments because of my statements, I am truly sorry.

From now on, I will make sure this kind of things don’t get repeated. I will pray for healing of those who got hurt by my imprudent words and acts. Going forward, I will quietly pray for the end of the pandemic in silence. I ask you for your forgiveness. I’d appreciate it.
